"Certain Aspects" of Senate Testimony

ISPECT VIOLATIONS

Washington, March 12—(P)—Joseph E. Casey, former congressman testified today he invested $20,000 in a company which bought five surplus government tankers and later sold the stock for about $270,000. Casey, now practicing law in Washington, was asked about the ship deal by senators looking into alleged use of influence on government agencies. He is a former Democratic house member from Massachusetts. The senators had developed earlier that Casey had been associated with Joseph Rosenbaum in practice before the Maritime Commission and had received $15,800 in fees from Rosenbaum.

Washington, March 12—(P)—Senators trailing reports of influence of government agencies today questioned Joseph E. Casey, a former congressman, about $5,800 in fees from Joseph H. Rosenbaum for Maritime Commission practice.

Rosenbaum, a Washington lawyer, has been a central figure in senate banking subcommittee's arings on alleged influence and favoritism in lending by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The group has asserted that Rosenbaum had unusual success in getting RFC loans. It attributed in part to Rosenbaum's friendship with White House aide Donald Dawson and E. Merle Young, Washington insurance man whose firm is a White House stenographer.

Casey, a former Democratic house member from Massachusetts, was questioned about fees Maritime Commission practice preliminary to exploration of 300,000 of RFC loans to the Central Iron and Steel Corp., of Harrisburg, Pa.

The subcommittee told him it learned he had received a $800 fee from Rosenbaum on March 10, 1950, and a $10,000 one year earlier.

Casey testified "I don't remember" the basis for the $10,000 payment but promised to supply the details later.

He said he and Rosenbaum both owned stock in a company which bought five surplus vessels. He identified the firm as "American Overseas Tanker."

The hearings during the last few weeks have dealt with many of the borrowers, with midmen, with RFC directors accused by the subcommittee of lending to outside influence.

They also have dealt with subcommittee charges that Donald Wesson, an aide to President Truman, and former RFC employee E. Merle Young exerted influence on one of the lending agency's directors.

Over the weekend, Rep. Keating (N. Y.) said he had heard that Truman had fired Merle Young's wife from her job as a White House stenographer.

Sales Tax Is Discussed By Governor and GOP Leaders At Conference in Capital

Harrisburg, March 12—(P)—A state sales tax was reported to have been given priority over a flat income tax last night at a conference between Gov. John S. Fine and top Republican legislators. The conference broke up, shortly before midnight.

Committee Works Behind Doors On Military Program

Washington, March 12—(P)—The house armed services committee today approved lowering the draft age to 18 years and six months, and lengthening of the service term to 26 months.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) said the action was final and was taken "without objection."

The committee in closed session is considering section by section a revised version of the bill introduced by Vinson for cutting the draft age below the present 19-year limit, extending the period of service, and setting up a universal military training program for the future.

The house bill differs in several respects from the one which the senate passed Friday.

Vinson has predicted speedy committee approval, with the hope of getting the bill before the house Wednesday and obtaining passage before Easter.

There was threat of a delay, however, in a Republican proposal to tie on an amendment requiring congressional approval for assigning U. S. divisions to the North Atlantic pact army. This proposal, by Rep. Arends (R-Ill.) had the backing of the house Republican policy committee.

TWO ARE DEAD IN AUTOMOBILE CRASHES

Pittsburgh, March 12—(P)—Auto crashes killed two persons in western Pennsylvania over the weekend.

Mrs. Sarah Fisher, 23, of Erie, died Saturday several hours after an auto in which she was riding careened off the highway at Shippenville. Her husband, Russell, 24, and his brother, Harold, 26, of New Bethlehem suffered minor injuries.

An auto crashed into a pole at North Braddock yesterday killing Rudy Ocel, 25, of North Braddock. Richard Kaminsky, also of North Braddock, was treated for head injuries.

Commission Decision Exonerates Two Firemen Charged With Falsification

John A. Eldridge, Jr., and Ralph B. Dalrymple, city firemen, were completely exonerated of charges brought against them by Fire Chief C. A. Albaugh, in a decision handed down on Saturday by Howard Alexander and Robert H. Trusler, members of the borough civil service commission.

The men had been charged by Chief Albaugh with falsification of inventory reports and had been suspended from duty. They appealed to the civil service commission for a hearing, asking that the GOP leaders told reporters after the conference. He declined to permit use of his name.

That source also said a flat income tax also was discussed but added:

"It still looks like a sales tax as the most painless way of collecting the needed money."

A general sales tax is certain to be opposed by the Democratic minority in the legislature and by labor groups.

The levy under consideration, it was reported, would exempt some necessities such as food. Two percent was mentioned as a possible rate for the tax.

Fine called the conference with the GOP assembly leaders to go over with them the No. 1 problem of the new Republican administration:

How to raise the money needed to pay the cost of the state bonus to World War Two veterans and to meet the increased cost of state government activities in the next two years?

As the legislature convened attention also centered on the house where quick approval was expected of a senate change in the key bill of the administration's civil defense program.

The change would impose restrictions on unlimited taxing powers to communities to prepare for enemy attack. It provides that tax-raising procedures can be abandoned only in the event of a proclaimed emergency.

The amendment was inserted by the senate last week after approval of three other civil defense measures now on the governor's desk awaiting his signature.

The fifth and final civil defense bill still is before a senate committee. It would fix the death penalty for industrial sabotage involving loss of life.

The first public hearing of the 1951 legislature will be held tomorrow when the senate judiciary committee listens to testimony on a bill to set up court procedures in dealing with sex offenders.

RUG PRICES HIKED

Washington, March 12—(P)—A 15 per cent increase in the manufacturers' and wholesalers' price of wool carpets and rugs was approved by the government today. Retailers will be permitted to pass along to their customers the exact dollars and cents increases reflected in the cost to them of the carpets and rugs they offer for sale.

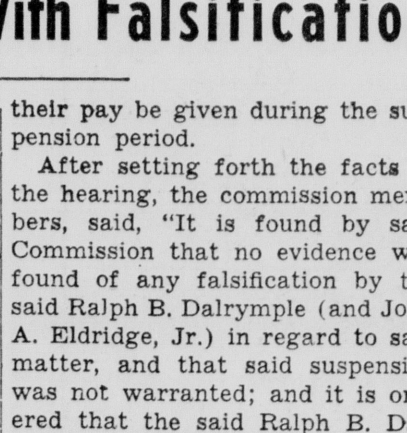

The order by Price Director Michael V. Disalle was issued because of increased costs of wool.

CASUALTY LIST

Washington, March 12—(P)—The Defense Department today identified 624 additional casualties of the war in Korea. A new casualty list (No. 248) reported 60 combat deaths, 353 wounded, 175 missing in action and 36 injured in accidents.

DEADLOCK IN MOBILIZATION PEACE TALKS

Washington, March 12—(P)—Labor and management agreed on one thing concerning wage controls today. Influential men on both sides told a reporter the peace-making efforts of economic stabilizer Eric Johnston are deadlocked — for the time being at least.

At the same time, price director Michael V. Disalle criticized labor leaders for walking out of positions in government mobilization agencies.

"You can't have teamwork, if half the team is outside the stadium," he said yesterday in a television debate with James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO.

Carey retorted there was no real teamwork before the walkout either. He said the walkout was "not a strike against the government," but an action to call the public's attention to what he termed failure to include representatives of workers, housewives, and farmers in the mobilization program.

At Disalle's office of price stabilization (OPS), officials began putting the final touches on three big food orders which they expect to issue this week. America's 500,000 retail grocery stores and about 2,000 wholesalers will go under a new system of price controls. As a result, housewives are expected to pay higher prices on some items and lower prices on others.

Frank P. Graham, former president of the University of North Carolina who later served in the senate, was named yesterday to be defense manpower administrator in the labor department.

MERCER GRAND JURY TO PROBE GAMBLING

Mercer, March 12—(P)—Mercer county's grand jury will call on officials of county communities today for testimony in its investigation of gambling activities.

Before a weekend recess was called, Judge George H. Rowley told the jurors that state policemen's hands are tied "by some action in Harrisburg."

The judge said he has requested the district attorney to question citizens who may have some idea who took the unspecified action in the state capital.

Shortage of Cecil Bank Over Million

Cecil, March 12—(P)—Cecil's First National Bank, which was closed after the death of its friendly cashier, now has a reported shortage of $1,250,000 and the sum is expected to go still higher.

Edward C. Tefft of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation released the shortage figure and said:

"There's no way of telling what the total shortage will amount to when we get through."

The bank was closed a few days after Cashier John F. Wagner, 57, shot and killed himself in front of the bank vault last Sept. 25. The shortage was discovered immediately after Wagner's death.

Wagner's friends say he did not benefit personally but was the sort of man who could not say "no" to friends asking for loans.

FDIC at first said the loss would reach a half million dollars. A claim for more than $1,000,000 will be filed against Wagner's estate, the FDIC reported.

Oil Man Offers Bet Russia Won't Attack

Los Angeles, March 12—(P)—A retired oil man and financier has offered to bet $100,000 that Russia doesn't attack this country this year and $200,000 that she won't do it in 1952.

Andrew T. Jergins, who recently sold his holdings for $32,000,000 made the wager in an interview Saturday night.

The offer is "worldwide, there are no strings attached," he emphasized, adding, "If I win, I'll turn over the money to the boy and girl scouts of Los Angeles county."

Committee Reveals Secret Testimony From Eisenhower

Washington, March 12—(P)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has told senators that 12 American divisions—with sufficient air and sea support—could hold the Breton peninsula of France against any Russian attack.

In confidential testimony given to senate committees Feb. 1, the North Atlantic Pact commander expressed confidence that "our 150,000,000 enlightened people can still whip 190,000,000 backward people" in Russia if war comes.

Asserting that the men in the Kremlin "like their jobs," Eisenhower said that if the Soviet leaders declare war now "they are really fools."

"They cannot win on the global picture instantly and quickly by a complete knockout," he said.

The five-star general told members of the senate foreign relations and armed services committees that the decision on whether to use the atomic bomb would have to be made on the basis of whether its military value outweighs the moral disadvantages.

Interesting Report for the Fiscal Year Submitted for Struthers Wells Company

Net sales of Struthers Wells for the fiscal year ended November 30, 1950, its hundredth year of operation, were $11,662,136 and net profit for the year was $915,154, the annual report reveals. This is equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $3.48 per share on 226,158 shares of common stock outstanding.

For the fiscal year ended November 30, 1949, net sales were $14,653,042. Net income for the period was $970,114, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $3.69 per share on the same number of shares outstanding.

In his message to stockholders, John T. Dillon, president, said that the sales decrease from the previous fiscal year was due to the curtailments in the purchase of capital goods during the early part of the fiscal year. He said that net income for the year decreased primarily as the result of the reduced volume of sales.

Profit before taxes on income during the latest fiscal year was $1,449,154 and federal and state

Kinzua Man, Wife Pass Away at the Warren General

The community of Kinzua lost two of its oldest citizens by death this morning, when Mr. and Mrs. David T. Gabriel succumbed at Warren General Hospital at 9:30 and 11:30 respectively.

Both were admitted to the hospital late Friday, after Mr. Gabriel had been found lying on the floor of their home on North Green street. It is believed that he had suffered a stroke. His wife, an invalid for many years and blind, had been seriously ill only since Thursday, when a physician was called.

David Tryon Gabriel was born in Tryonville, February 21, 1864, the son of John S. and Cornelia Tryon Gabriel, and his wife, Eliza Arvenia Blair, was born in Titusville, January 26, 1863, the daughter of George and Anna Blair. They were married 61 years ago last June in Spartansburg and had lived in Kinzua for the past 40 years. Mr. Gabriel was a paper hanger and painter in his earlier years and his wife sang in the Methodist choir at Kinzua.

Surviving him are a sister, Mrs. C. H. Marker, and a niece, Mrs. Melvin Haupin, both of 700 Cone-wango avenue, Warren; also a niece in Meadville and three nephews in Colorado. Mrs. Gabriel's only near survivor is a step-sister, Mrs. Vinie Adams, Detroit, Mich.

Removal has been made to the Lutz-VerMilyea Funeral Home, from where arrangements for services in their memory will be announced later.

LAYING NEW LINE

Market street between Second and Third avenue has been blocked off to automobile traffic today while a water line is laid into the site of the new apartment building next to the public library. Nelson and Ellberg firm is doing the work and expect to complete it by tonight.

Aliquippa Workers Staging Meat Strike

Aliquippa, March 12—(P)—Steelworkers in this bustling mill town set out today to prove that people can do more than just talk about the high price of meat.

The 10,000 member CIO United Steelworkers local began a so-called meat strike in an effort to bring prices down. The union asked workers and families to do without meat entirely. If that's not possible, officers asked that purchases be cut in half.

Police Activities Are Confined To Routine Inquiries

One accident was reported to city police over the weekend, but otherwise, police activities were purely routine.

Ellsworth Lyle, of 42 Locust St., was struck by a car Friday evening shortly before nine o'clock, but was not seriously injured. According to the police reports, the car was operated by Clarence A. Chase, of RD 1, Clymer, N. Y., who was proceeding west on Pennsylvania avenue near Locust street. Lyle was engaged in changing a tire on a car, and Chase told police that he did not see the parked car in time to avoid hitting Lyle.

The injured man was treated at the office of a local physician for bruises of the right hip and leg, but was not hospitalized.

Police report one traffic arrest over the weekend, made Friday at the South street school light.

Officers were called upon to settle a family battle on Water St. Friday evening; and were called to the South side early Saturday morning where a prowler was reported.

COURT REFUSES TO REVIEW HISS TRIAL

Harrisburg March 12—(P)—The state superior court today upheld a Lancaster county decision that two Amish children must attend school until they are 16 years of age.

The court said in a decision written by Judge Claude T. Reno "the state is free to compel attendance of children at school."

The decision involved cases of Samuel and Levi Beiler, members of the Amish sect, who refused to send their children to school after they completed the eighth grade at 14 years.

DRAGONETTE WINS FIRST PLACE SPOT

The Dragonette, Warren High School newspaper, won a first place award this year in the annual contest of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, it is announced today. The award is the third in the mimeograph division since its reorganization four years ago, receiving a second place the first year. Miss Clara Spade, advisor, attended the press conference at Columbia University Thursday through Saturday of last week.

PLANES STEAL SHOW ALONG BATTLE FRONT

Tokyo, March 12—(P)—A spectacular explosion of two colliding Russian-made jet planes stole the Korean war spotlight today as ground action slowed behind re-treating Communists.

The MIGs were trying to make a tight turn while chasing an American F-80 Thunderjet. They couldn't cut it fine enough, collided and exploded.

"Best damn show I've been on," said Lt. Arthur Walton of Bethesda Md., one of the pilots in a flight of four F-80s attacked by speedy Red planes.

The four F-80s reported they damaged four other MIG-15s in a 10-minute dogfight. That brought the bag of damaged MIGs to seven for the biggest two days of jet fighting over northwest Korea in this war.

A total of 61 MIGs in flights of 10 to 20 each—engaged U. S. F-80s and F-56s in four dogfights Sunday and today.

On the ground Red resistance collapsed on the east central front and faded sharply before a three-pronged Allied spearhead along the west-central sector of the Allies' advancing 70-mile line.

United Nations tank columns rolled within five miles of Hongchong on the west-central front. Hongchong is a great Communist troop staging area and once was reported to be Chinese general headquarters.

Department of Defense lists from Korea, released over the weekend, contain the names of three area men missing in action: Pfc. Jay Eugene Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Beck, Bradford RD 3; Pfc. Dennis Daniel Buckley, brother of William Buckley, 231 Parade street, and Pfc. Stanley J. Witkowski, brother of Chester P. Witkowski, 14 Eagle Point boulevard, Erie. Also included is the name of Sgt. William A. Croasmun, son of Mrs. Seeley J. Croasmun, Marienville.

U. N. Forces met little resistance as they probed within sight of the big Red supply center. Only the day before, Reds before Hongchong fought stiff rear-guard action, indicating they would make a last-ditch stand.

British, Canadian and Australian troops were within five miles of Hongchong on the south. They were 22 miles south of the 38th parallel.

A. U. S. First Cavalry Division tank force stabbed three miles forward Monday to within five miles of the Red center on the south-west.

U. S. First Division marines, approaching Hongchong from the southeast, were reported six miles away.

Easter Vacation Hits Washington

Washington, March 12—(P)—Easter vacation fever hit Capitol Hill today, and administration leaders hoped it would help shove along some important legislation now in difficulty.

Both senate and house hope to get out of Washington from March 22 until April 2. Whether they do or not depends on the progress of legislation between now and March 22.

Standing between the senate and a vacation are two major matters, an emergency extension of the federal rent control program and the hotly controversial troops-for-Europe resolution.

Before an Easter recess, house leaders would like to get rid of bills for emergency food aid for India, defense housing, rent control and reorganization.

The house may also be called upon to act on a bill revising and extending the draft act and setting up authority for eventual universal military training and service. The senate passed such a bill Friday. The house armed services committee has not yet approved its version but may do so in a few days.

Little difficulty is expected getting through both houses a resolution extending the federal rent control program for 90 days beyond March 31.

But the trouble sign hangs over the rest of the pre-Easter gram.

Nationally Known Forest Will Talk to Sportsmen's Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Warren Field and Stream Club will be held in Irvinedale School Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Bill Smith, formerly District State Forester at Warren and now assistant chief of the Division of Protection in Harrisburg, will present movies and a talk on Forest Fire Prevention. The film he will show is "Fire in the Forest," which is the latest one of the co-operative pictures which have been gotten out by the State and U. S. Forest Service working together. Mr. Smith will be accompanied by H. B. Rowland, chief of the division of protection and a nationally known forester.

An additional educational film "Be Your Age," will be shown in it actual X-ray motion picture sequences show the heart and its valves at work—show the ability of the young heart to readjust after strenuous exercise and how this ability decreases with middle age. The many deaths each year in hunting season due to heart failure should make this film of real interest to all sportsmen.

Most of the trout stocking has been completed in the county and a report will be made of their distribution. All sportsmen are invited to attend this meeting.

LEGION AUXILIARY

From Palm Sunday to Easter was one of the most significant weeks in human history, when Jesus Christ suffered, died, and arose from the dead. PROPRIETY IN OFFICIAL LIFE

From the moment RFC disclosures began hitting the headlines, the words "illegal" and "improper" have enjoyed the currency of popular songs.

White House attaches, RFC officials, senators, these and others have time and again defended the exercise of pressure and influence on the ground that what they did was not illegal. Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, pursuing the inquiry has often insisted that while this might be so, their actions were nevertheless improper.

Faced with this moral gauge, the principals in the RFC story have then usually gone on to assert that they have done nothing improper, either.

There is no need here to discuss the issue of illegality. If any be demonstrated, it is a matter for the courts and that's that. What is of much graver concern to the nation is the strange ideas so many of our public officials seem to have of what is proper and what is improper.

An examiner for RFC sees no harm in accepting free hospitalization from a Florida hotel owner who has won an RFC loan. Senator Murray, Montana Democrat, says it's quite "routine" for lawmakers to plug loans for applicants who happen to be constituents, even when a senator's son is the applicants' lawyer.

White House personnel feel utterly free about accepting favors of all kinds, as well as dispensing them. Maj.-Gen. Harry Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, doesn't have a single qualm whether he's taking in deep freezers or getting a special law pushed through congress to allow entry from Australia of a woman acquaintance he wants as secretary.

In all these instances, the principals have one standard reply: "Is there anything wrong in that?"

That they even find it necessary to ask the question tells us how insensible many public men have become to any lofty code of propriety in official life. By any reasonable measure, no man who occupies a position of responsibility in government ought either to accept or grant special favors to anyone.

There was a time when such an elementary ethical standard was universally revered and widely observed. In the Washington of 1951, it appears as outmoded as celluloid collars and knee-length bathing suits.

In the opinion of Bruce Blossat, NEA Service editorial writer, nothing unearthed so far has bracketed the Truman administration with the scandalous Harding regime. Yet in some ways the offenses against the moral code today are worse. They have tended to haul the national government down to the level of petty, tin-horn courthouse politics. They have robbed the White House and the presidency of dignity. They have made Washington life spineless, boneless—a shambles of competing influences and pressures and friendships in which moral values are buried underfoot.

Only one thing is still lacking. No one has yet put vending machines into the White House, the Capital and assorted government halls to dispense favors easily, mechanically, and for a fixed price. "Is there anything wrong in that?"

LENTEN SERMONETTE

"THE FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER"

RESPONSIBLE LEADERSHIP

He was a good man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith Acts 11:24. Read verses 19-30.

All too frequently the spiritual estate of the Christian fellowship is in the hands of uninspired leadership. What a lift the church would experience if it were in the hands of men whose goodness followed the pattern which Jesus described!

He thought of a good man as a humble man. When He wanted to define humility He dramatized it when He stopped and washed His disciples' feet. "If I, your Lord and Master, wash your feet, you ought also to wash one another's feet."

Also, a good man, according to Jesus, identified himself with humanity everywhere. "If all men count with you . . . you'll be a man." (Kipling) The self-conscious feeling of national, religious, and racial groups that they alone are the people who count, is one of the fountainheads of the world's woes.

Again, Jesus would regard a man as good who honestly sets out to find the ultimate truth that lies back of this bewildering, measureless universe becomes, and the more hopeless the conditions, the more necessary it is to have a personal God.

Let Us Pray: Give us a spirit, our Father, that seeks to measure life alongside the life of Jesus. Amen.

U. S. Watches for Smugglers As Gold Bug Bites Foreigners

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Recent attempts to smuggle gold out of the United States have disclosed some odd angles to foreign hoarding. Every time there is a political crisis in some part of the world, the desire increases to convert local currencies—which may fluctuate in value—for something of supposedly permanent value, like gold. That's what starts the gold smugglers to work. They try to get gold out of the United States and into countries where there is little regulation and where the gold can be sold at premium prices. Last time there was a big effort to get gold out of the United States was in 1949, when Chinese Nationalists were fleeing the Communists. The urge then was to convert real property into gold and flee the country. After the Nationalists left the mainland, the demand for gold dropped off.

Before that, when some 20 European currencies were facing devaluation, there was another big demand for gold. As soon as the currency devaluation was effected, the demand for gold dropped off. Latest pickup in the gold smuggling racket began with the attack on Korea. The new demand is not concentrated to the Far East, however. Every country that faces political unrest or Communist aggression has demands for black market gold. India and the Middle Eastern countries have been good customers. Egypt has a heavy gold ornament trade.

MOST of the people recently caught trying to smuggle U. S. gold out of New York have been headed for Europe. This was true of the man who loaded the back of his car with 300 pounds of gold and tried to ship it to England. Commonest practice is to try to carry it out on the person, or in suitcases, a little at a time. The French free gold market has recently been reporting sales close to $5,000,000 a day. But one new angle just disclosed by U. S. Treasury and Justice Department officials is to smuggle gold out of the U. S. as payment for diamonds intended to be smuggled in. If this circuit had worked, it would have yielded a profit at both ends.

How many smugglers don't get caught is, of course, unknown. But Treasury and Customs agents keep a close watch on all gold movements. All major transactions in gold are licensed by the Bureau of the Mint. But efforts are made not to put too much burden on small holders of the value, and faked valuations are easily detected. Also, if the gold content is more than 80 per cent of value, the articles are subject to seizure by the government.

Another big catch is that European countries in particular are alert to all of these shipments. They are apt to put heavy import duties on them, which takes out all the profit. The gold smuggling trade therefore tends to move through the free ports like Tangiers, Macao and Kuwait, or the countries that have no regulations on gold trade, like Lebanon. International Monetary Fund has been trying to break up this trade, but hasn't had too much success.

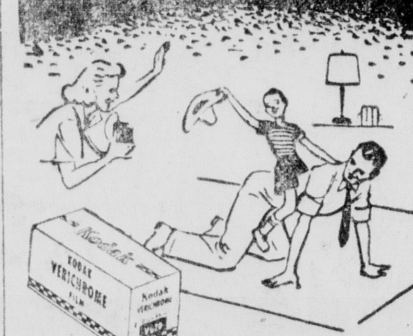

Understood that a number of Republican candidates for offices this year will toss derbies into the ring during the week, and it would not be surprising if one or two Democrats announce. . . . The ever-popular Roy Rogers in one of his latest films attracted a capacity matinee crowd to the Library Theatre Saturday afternoon.

Joyce E. Dalrymple and Gail T. Nelson Wed Saturday In Grace Church Rite

Palms, a large basket of white gladioli and chrysanthemums, and candelabra holding white tapers were used in an impressive setting in Grace Methodist church Saturday for the wedding of Joyce Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Dalrymple, 17½ Dartmouth street, and Gail T. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nelson, 13 Parker street.

The Rev. C. W. Baldwin, pastor, performed the ceremony, with Mrs. Emil Jacobson at the organ for traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a two-piece crepe dress of powder blue, with rhinestone trim. Her accessories were navy blue and she carried a white Bible, topped with a white orchid and showered with white streamers.

Her maid of honor and only attendant, Carol Nelson, wore a navy two-piece dress with white trim, accessories of navy shade, and she carried a nosegay of yellow roses.

Dean Nelson, Clarion, was best man for his brother and ushers were Louis and Delbert Dalrymple, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Dalrymple chose a navy and gold print for her daughter's wedding, accenting it with a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Nelson had green accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations with a beige suit.

A reception for 60 relatives and friends followed in the church parlors, with out of town guests from Jamestown and Frewsburg, N. Y.,

Ludlow, New Wilmington and Clarion.

Placed under a wedding bell and flanked by white candles, a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with bridal figures in miniature, featured the bride's table. Barbara Carlson served the cake; Mrs. Elmer Dutchess and Mrs. Kenneth Larson presided.

After a week's wedding trip to New York City, the couple will reside at 110½ Dartmouth street. For travel, the bride selected a blue checked suit, white accessories and a white orchid.

Mrs. Nelson was graduated from Warren High School in the Class of 1948 and is employed by the Pennsylvania Gas Company.

Mr. Nelson, member of the graduating class of 1949 and one of the Blue and White's outstanding basketball figures, is a New Process Company employee.

Honoring her with pre-nuptial parties have been Mrs. Elmer Dutchess; Mrs. Roy Lowe and Mrs. Eldon Hendrickson; Mrs. Kenneth Larson; Carol Nelson; and girls of the Gas Company office.

Home Near Garland Destroyed by Fire

Youngsville firemen were called out yesterday afternoon about three o'clock when the home of Roy Richards, on the Marcia Ann Road out of Garland, was completely destroyed by fire. Mr. Richards, who resides alone, had gone to a neighbor's home for eggs, and when he returned and opened the door to his own home, the interior was completely ablaze. The cause of the fire is unknown. Two trucks and 12 men from the Youngsville department responded to the call, but were unable to save the home. They did, however, extinguish a forest fire which started as a result. This morning, shortly after 10 o'clock, firemen were called for a grass fire at the rear of the Ted Yuchi home on North Main street. There was no damage, and firemen extinguished the blaze with booster lines.

Rift Reported In The Crosby Family

New York, March 12—(P)—Dixie Lee Crosby, wife of singer Bing Crosby, boarded a plane today for a three-month tour of Europe and told reporters they could make their own story on her marital status. Reporters asked if there were any truth in recurring rumors of a rift between her and her husband. "No comment," she said. "You can make your own story." Asked if she wished to deny the reports, she said: "I do not want to make any comment." Mrs. Crosby travelled aboard a Pan - American World Airlines plane for Amsterdam, Holland. She was accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. George J. Hummer, of Santa Monica, Calif., and her secretary, Miss Georgina Hardwick.

Planes Steal Show Along Korean Front

ed on the east-central front. Allied troops moved in quickly behind the fleeing Reds and seized mile-high Mount Taemi without firing a shot. U. S. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. Eighth Army commander, told war correspondents that U. N. forces have let a lot of air out of the inflated balloon of the Chinese military establishments. In six days the grinding Allied offensive has killed or wounded about 33,000 Communist troops. Ridgway said the ratio of Communist casualties to U. N. losses was "well over 60 to 1." Ridgway said also that new American troops are appearing in Korea as replacements for combat veterans. He called it the beginning of a "greatly increased flow of replacements." The Chinese Nationalist defense ministry reported from Taipei that heavy losses have forced the Chinese Communists to order more than 200,000 more troops to Korea, including a whole new army.

Conaventure Plays St. Johns Tonight

New York, March 12—(P)—St. John's of Brooklyn, with a change to make basketball history, tangles with St. Bonaventure tonight in the quarter final round of the National Invitation tournament.

No team ever has won the invitation title three times, but St. John's is seeded No. 1 and is favored over St. Bonaventure. The Brooklyn Redmen won the NIT in 1943 and 1944.

This game will be preceded by the match between third-seeded Brigham Young and St. Louis.

The human heart rests about eight-tenths of a second between each contraction.

City League Games Scheduled Tonight

In Y City League action tonight the Ramblers and Atlantic meet at 7 o'clock and the New Process, and Rockets at 8 o'clock. Only two nights are remaining after tonight in the regular league schedule, which ends Monday, March 19.

Atlantic should have little trouble with Ramblers, a win giving them a slight edge over the Style Shop for the top spot in the league. The same situation will arise in the second contest, the New Process sticking to last place with a 1-7 record this half. A Rocket victory would clinch third position for the team.

High man for Youngville was Dick Wood with 10, followed closely by Birdie Haight with 9. For Warren, Foley hit a high score of 10.

Chapter 22

I WATCHED Faraday wrap the book in a piece of flimsy brown paper, take Caldwell's money, and manipulate the old-fashioned cash register. "We receive rare items of a similar nature from time to time, and we'll notify you of their arrival."

I followed Caldwell into the street.

"Miss Ruhl's assumption was erroneous," he said abruptly.

"About what?"

"About John Faraday."

"Oh," I said, wondering what he was talking about.

"Miss Ruhl said that when they asked for Mr. Faraday, the clerk called the rear of the store for him. Then Lawrence Straw appeared and showed them how to proceed downstairs. From this occurrence she assumed that the man who responded to the clerk's summons was Faraday. What actually happened, I think, was that Straw happened to be in the office and, when the clerk called, he answered in Faraday's stead, either because Faraday was out, because he was busy doing something else, or because they expected June Hanson's arrival and Straw was as familiar with the arrangement as Faraday was."

"That's right," I agreed. "If Straw was an officer and a part owner he must have known what was going on. But what seems odd to me is this: according to the girls, Straw received them, talked to them, and paid them—yet he never made any attempt to establish his own identity. And it was Faraday who phoned and made the date with them for Thursday evening. They expected him to call."

Caldwell nodded thoughtfully.

"Yes, that's odd, especially so when we recall that, according to Phelan, Faraday was on the other side of Lake Michigan at the time he was supposed to have come to see Miss Hanson and Miss Ruhl."

"You say that's right?"

"Therefore," Caldwell continued, spacing his words deliberately, "if Faraday actually did phone June Hanson, he must have done so immediately before leaving for the pier from which the boat left, for, if I remember correctly, sailing time is nine-thirty each morning. Consequently, he knew when he phoned that he'd be in Michigan and wouldn't be able to keep the engagement. Why, then, did he tell her that he would call on her? Why didn't he tell her that Lawrence Straw, his associate, would call in his stead?"

"Look," I made one last stab at an argument. "Is Phelan absolutely positive that Faraday didn't get off that boat before it sailed?"

"I thought of that," Caldwell admitted, hesitating for a moment before answering. "However, the purser was at the gangway and saw Faraday board ship. He's positive he couldn't have left the ship."

"How about witnesses, and so on?"

"Faraday says he rode across to St. Joe, strolled about town awhile, rode a bus to Muskegon, and saw a movie, then rode back to St. Joe and boarded the boat for the return trip."

"Is that all?"

"While in Muskegon, he stopped in a department store—Gross, man's and purchased a sweater."

"Why a sweater?"

"He said the wind had been chilly on the lake and it occurred to him that it might be colder on the return trip. Phelan examined the sweater and it does bear Grossman's label. Besides, one of the clerks remembers selling the sweater to a man of Faraday's description, although she isn't positive when the purchase was made."

"I suppose he has a sales check with the date on it and everything?"

"He says he put the sweater on immediately and, since it fitted all right, threw the sales check away. In fact, the clerk says she remembers him particularly because of his donning the sweater right there in the store. She thought him a little odd at the time."

"But he hasn't actually proved when he bought the sweater."

"Well, he has the sweater, it's brand new, and it's correctly labeled. He obviously bought it in Muskegon, as he says," Caldwell shrugged.

WE STRODE down Clark Street as far as Chicago Avenue, then turned east and continued home. We went up the walk at a pretty good clip because we'd been matching our steps with our thoughts, and, by the time we got to the house, our thoughts were racing like mad. I noticed when I opened the door that it was ajar an inch or two, but still, still engrossed in thought, I just pushed it open and walked in.

Caldwell stopped in the doorway of the study and looked about in bewilderment. I pushed in after him—and blinked. The study had the appearance of having been swept by a cyclone. Filing cards, papers, letters, and books literally covered the floor. Caldwell stepped into the doorway of the study and looked about in bewilderment. I pushed in after him—and blinked. With George Hesch and Ed Lindberg setting the pace with 17 and 16 points respectively, the Stylists built up a 31-13 margin in the second period of the game. But Jerry Burns, high pointmaker of the night's games with 22 counters, began hitting to cut the margin to 11 points at half-time.

Again in the early moments of the final stanza the Erieites cut the lead to 10 points, but Warren let loose again for an easy victory.

Next Friday the Style Shop will meet Marx Toy at 9 o'clock.

Chapter 23

"WHAT happened?" I asked Caldwell, who was standing in the study and acting as though he couldn't believe his eyes.

Caldwell stared thoughtfully at me.

"What did you do with the tax returns you took from Lawrence Straw's apartment?"

"They're in my pocket."

I reached into the inner breast pocket of my coat and produced the pair of income tax returns.

Caldwell eyed the returns but made no effort to take them. "Well, you're muzzled."

"Well, yourself," I said. "Here they are."

"You're certain they're the ones you took from Straw's room?"

I suddenly realized what he meant. "Do you think they were looking for these returns?"

Caldwell nodded silently.

"Nobody knows we've got them!" The absolute truth of the statement even impressed me. "Absolutely no one knows I swiped these returns!"

I RECOGNIZED the short, heavy steps of Mary on the front porch. She gasped when she got to the door and saw us.

"Mother of God!" she gasped. "Is it you, Dr. Caldwell?"

"Why, yes, Mary."

"I'm that glad!" she exclaimed with relief. "I was afraid it was serious!"

"You were afraid what was serious?" I demanded.

"Why, the accident?"

"What accident?" I insisted.

"Why—?" She stared at me, astonished. "Wasn't there an accident?" Her eyes went from me to Caldwell and, during their journey, suddenly registered the chaotic condition of the room. "Dear God!" she breathed.

About nine-thirty, the phone rang and Mary had answered. A man who talked in a rapid, ruff told her Caldwell had been injured in an accident at the laboratory and wanted her to come right away. That's all he'd said. He hung up abruptly and Mary, shocked by the news, had hurried to the lab without even stopping to take off her apron.

"Didn't it occur to you that it might be a joke—or a trick—"

Chapter 24

CALDWELL made me sit down after dinner and tell him everything that had happened that afternoon. He asked a lot of questions about Elaine Ruhl.

I finally got away at seven-thirty by reminding him that I had a date and that Elaine wouldn't like waiting all night.

"Perhaps Miss Ruhl's roommate would like to see how her physical charm has been used to illuminate the classics," Caldwell suggested drily. He handed me the Ovid he'd purchased that morning, and, putting it under my arm, I started out the door.

I got to State and Goethe Streets, and went into the building and walked up the steps to the second floor, but that's as far as I got. You see, the door of Maud McGregor's apartment opened and she and Richard Starr Flecker came out into the hall. Flecker, who was wearing conservative and quite ordinary clothes this time, fixed his calm, clear gaze on me and said, "Good evening."

"Good evening," I said. And then "Good evening, Mrs. McGregor."

"Where you coming to see me?" she asked.

"Not really," I said awkwardly, "but only because I didn't think I'd be welcome."

"Then come in and talk to me for a few minutes," she invited. She sounded so eager and insistent that I gave in and entered her apartment. Flecker, his white hair looking as though it had just been washed and ironed gave me a polite aloof nod of farewell and stepped across the hall to his own apartment for all the world as though he'd been borrowing a cup of sugar and had no interest in Maud McGregor's existence.

I couldn't understand Flecker's interest in Maud McGregor. Flecker was a handsome specimen of a man—a lady's man if I ever saw one—so why would he be interested in a thin, bony, neurotic woman like her?

"Where's the husband?" I asked. "Playing cards again?"

"Yes," she sighed.

"He must do all right," I said. "If he manages to make ends meet, pay rent, buy grub, and keep you in pretty-pretties. These

"You may not have noticed," she retorted, making a face, "but I work and draw a check every week myself."

"You don't sound as though you cared much about him."

"Oh, I love the guy, if that's what you mean. He wasn't always the way he is now. For awhile he worked regularly and we saved money, but since the war he's been loading around the gambling joints," saying he's going to make a pile and make it fast."

"That's the way to make it—in piles and fast."

"Sure, but he isn't doing it."

"Why not quit your job? Then he'd have to work in order to support you."

She sniffed disdainfully. "You don't know Don. He's convinced that some day he'll hit a winning streak and build up a big bank roll. Then he intends to quit."

"And start a business of his own?"

"Yes," she twisted her thin hands. "Sounds screwy, doesn't it?"

"What sort of business does Don want to start?" I asked curiously.

"He used to be a commercial photographer, and he wants to set up a studio of his own—do illustrations, advertisements, stuff like that. You can imagine what the equipment for a place like that costs."

"FOR chrissake!" I saw in a flash a vision of a small man with a cough and a handkerchief taking photographs in the basement of the Anchor Book Store. Elaine said he'd had a little mustache—and Don McGregor had a mustache, and Don was a photographer.

"Has he done any work lately?" I asked carefully.

"No," Maud shook her head. "He may have hooked on a job or two but I don't think so. He'd have told me, if he had."

"Did Don ever specialize in any particular kind of photography?"

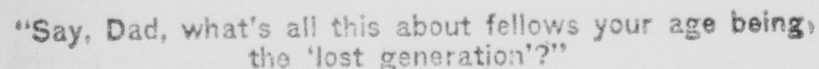

"Mostly illustrations: scenes, mood layouts and that sort of stuff."

"Got any of his work around?" I'd like to see what sort of a technique he uses."

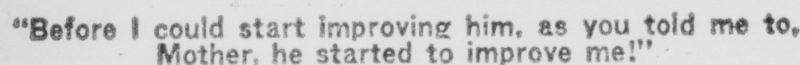

"Oh sure, we've got a box full." She got up and rummaged in a closet for a minute, returning with a cardboard box about the size of an overnight case. "These

L. E. StotzPartial cutting in forest stands has proven a very useful tool in increasing production of timber on many national forests in the United States.Of particular significance is what has been accomplished on the Coconino National Forest in Ar-izona. It has been found by experiment that the growth rate of ponderosa pine can be doubled if stands are cut lightly every 10 to 20 years rather than cutting by the former method which meant a heavy cut at 50 year intervals. By changing from long to short cutting cycles on this national forest an additional cut of ten million board feet per year has proven possible without reducing the growing stock necessary for sustained yield. This is now adding about $50,000 a year additional stumpage to the forest's revenue of which 25%, or $12,500, has beenadded to the returns from this forest to the local county in lieu of taxes. In addition, the local community of Flagstaff has benefited by an increase of $550,000 yearly gross return from the manufacture of this increased volume of timber. Credit for these findings, which led to light partial cuttings, goes to research conducted by the Forest Service at the Fort Valley Experiment Station in northern Arizona, where continuous studies have been conducted for many years.In the second-growth stands of liquidation of much of the old growth forests, significant studies have been made. These studies indicate that in these stands, which range from 27 to 108 years old, careful thinning always speeds up the production of large-size trees and also the over-all volume growth as well. By the application of careful logging, paying operations have resulted in Douglas-fir stands as young as 27 years, and very substantial profits are now being made from thinnings in 50 year old stands.Here on the Allegheny National Forest it has been demonstrated, through research, that repeated light thinnings of second growth hardwood stands at 10 to 15 year intervals increases the annual growth remarkably and puts thisincreased growth on the better trees which are reserved.A typical 40 year old stand on good soil which contained 40 cords per acre of chemical wood was thinned leaving 25 cords per acre standing. In 10 years this grew to 42 cords per acre which amounted to an annual growth of 1.73 cords per acre per year, as compared to uncut timber adjacent which only produced 1.02 cords per acre per year. In addition to a marked increase in growth in the treated stands the poorly formed and diseased trees which were removed improved the composition of the forest.CLASS A SINGLESMyers Pappalardo, with Dr. Jim Guinta substituting for him, won the Class A Men's Singles tennis championship tournament held at the Penn Alleys. Guinta won the title in the last match of the day.

In Class B, Paul Coppola swept all 14 games to walk away in his class.Rolling against Frank Gerardi, who held the lead, Guinta bowled games 219 and 184 against Gerardi's 162-187. These scores split the match with Guinta taking the total pins for the honors with 402 to 349.
Only seven pins separated the top three places, Gerardi—2688, Pappalardo—2687, and McCloskey—2681. The key match was when Gerardi defeated McCloskey by two points to make the photo finish possible.ENLISTS—Ronald A. Fitzger-

Jesus washed the feet of His apostles. They had been arguing over their own rank and importance—His gesture humbled them. When Peter balked at the rite, Jesus said, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." Peter submitted: "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and head."At the Last Supper, Jesus told His apostles, "One of you will betray me." Each asked, "Is it I, Lord?" When Judas asked, the Master's reply was, "Thou hast said it." Judas departed. Then Jesus broke bread, passing it to His disciples with the words, "Take you and eat; this is my body." And he passed the cup of wine, saying, "Drink ye all of this. For this is my blood of the new testament which is shed for many for the remission of sins."
